Gen. Crowder estimates that the District of Columbia will register 43,152 men, as compared with 32,372 registered June 5, 1917. Questionnaires will not be given out to registrants on registration day, officials explained. Following the registration, which will take place on the date specified between the hours of 7 o'clock a.m. and 9 o'clock nours of 7 o'clock a.m. and 9 o'clock p.m., a date will be set for the dis-tribution of questionnaires to regis-trants between certain ages. Questionnaires will not be dis-tributed to youths eighteen years old, is is declared.

Drawing to Determine Order.

Following registration a great drawing will be held at the Capitol to determine the order numbers of to determine the order numbers of the men registered.

Local boards of the nation are pre-pared for registration day and will devote most of the time remaining to informing registrants of their duties under the man-power law.

In the District organization of the draft machinery has proceeded smoothly, under direction of Maj.

D. J. Donovan, director of the draft, assisted by members of local boards.

Gen. March has said all registrants called into the Army will be in France before next June 30, swelling the American expeditionary force to more than the 4,000,000 men, expected to win the war in 1919. The last to be called will be the youths in their eighteenth year, but those of that age who desire and who have the necessary qualifications may be inducted into service on October 1 for special technical or vocational training.

Although the "work-or-fight" clause, which would have affected striking workmen, was taken out of the bill before its passage, Provost Marshal Gen. Crowder has planned to apply vigorously existing regulations relating to idle men or those engaged in non-essential employment to the newly registered men.

The man-power bill was signed yesterday by the presiding officers of the House and Senate and sent to the White House for the President's signature, which made the measure law. The President at once signed and issued the proclamation carrying the new draft provisions into action. Army of 4,000,000 Men. Young Men Ready Wears of age were registered. Three months ago, and again this month, those who had just reached the age of twenty-one were added. It now remains to include all men between the ages of eighteen and forty-five.

"This is not a new policy. A century and a quarter ago it was deliberately ordained by those who were then responsible for the safety and defense of the nation that the duty of military service should rest upon all ablebodied mén between the ages of eighteen and forty-five.

We now accept and fulfill the obligation expressed in our national statutes from that time until now. We solemnly purpose a decisive victory of arms and deliberately to devote the larger part of the military man power of the nation to the accomplishment of that purpose.

Young Men Ready.

"The younger men have from the first been ready to go. They have fruished voluntary enlistments out of all proportion to their numbers. Our military authorities regard them as military authorities regard them as having the highest combatant quali-ties. Their youthful enthusiasm, their all proportion to their numbers. Our military authorities regard them as having the highest combatant qualities. Their youthful enthusiasm, their virile eagerness, their gallant spirit of daring make them the admiration of all who see them in action. They covet not only the distinction of serving in this great war but also the inspiring memories which hundreds of thousands of them will cherish through the years to come of a great day and a great service for their country and for mankind.

"By the men of the older group now called upon, the opportunity now opened to them will be accepted with the calm resolution of those who realize to the full the deep and solemn significance of what they do. Having made a place for themselves in their respective communities, having assumed at home the graver responsibilities of life in many spheres, looking back upon honorable records in civil and industrial life, they will realize, as perhaps no others could, how entirely their own fortunes and the fortunes of all whom they love are put at stake in this war for right, and will know that the very records they have made render their new duty the commanding duty of their lives. They know how surely this is the nation's war, how imperatively it demands the mobilization and massing of all our resources of every kind. They will regard this call as the supreme call of their day, and will answer it accordingly.

"Only a portion of those who register will be called upon to bear arms. Those who are not physically fit will be excused; those who should not be relieved of their present responsibilities; above all, those who cannot be spared from the civil and industrial tasks at home upon which the success of our armies depends as much as upon the fighting at the front. But all must be registered in order that the selection for military service may be made intelligently and with full information. This will be our final demonstration of loyalty, democracy and the will to win, our solemn notice to all the world that we stand absolutely toge
